

Adams County

Local Food

Resource List 2009-2010

Compiled by:

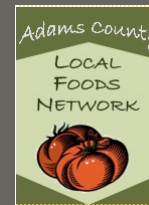

How to use this booklet:

Compiled by the Adams County Local Foods Network, the Local Food Resource List is intended to help you navigate and find the farms and markets that sell locally grown produce near you. Each listing includes the types of products sold and contact information so you can discover the resources available in your own backyard. Also included is a detachable map and a chart of seasonal foods to further assist you in locating food and buying food that supports the local economy, local farmers, and the environment. Enjoy!

Thank you for supporting local food!

About the Adams County Local Foods Network:

The Adams County Local Foods Network, an affiliate of Healthy Adams County, aims to connect and educate the people of Adams County about local food and sustainable agriculture. The group meets regularly for informal potlucks and conversation on the second Monday of each month. All are invited! For more information or to learn how to get more involved and support the local growers of Adams County, please contact Audrey Hess at aclocalfoodsnetwork@gmail.com

Purchasing a share of a CSA at the beginning of the growing season is a great way to directly support a local farm; farmers benefit from the financial security, and in return CSA members receive a constant supply of fresh, local produce throughout the season. To learn more about the CSA program contact one of these farms; shares go quickly so be sure to call well before the season begins!
